The roundtable brought together leaders from leading consumer goods companies, distributor networks, technology providers and logistics partners to discuss the digital transformation of India's General Trade ecosystem.

India's General Trade ecosystem, comprising over 1.4 crore kirana stores, accounts for nearly 75–80 per cent of FMCG sales. However, much of the channel continues to operate through fragmented ordering systems, limited inventory visibility and manual sales processes, resulting in inefficiencies for retailers, distributors and brands.
